STORMS ADD VARIETY TO APRIL WEATHER

A fall of some five inches of damp snow gave a decided wintry touch to the scenery Tuesday morning. Most of this snow disappeared during the day but it was followed by even more of the same variety on Wednesday morning, accompanied by some thunder and lightning. Cool winds kept this snow with us although some of the more optimistic still entertain hopes for higher temperatures.

GARDEN PLANS NOW IN PROGRESS HERE

Food won the first World War and it will play a big part in winning this one and a bigger part in the peace that follows.

The Civilian Defense Corps of the State of Maine requests that every town chairman be able to report on the number of gardens planted and the number of quarts of foods canned. All towns and cities are urged to plan and provide community gardens for extra food.

The Selectmen of Bethel are ready to help if there is an interest in more garden space being made available and have asked Mrs. R. R. Tibbets to act with them as garden chairman.

Please return the questionnaire to your neighborhood representative at once for the planting season will soon be here. This State project is designed to increase the production of essential vegetables for canning and cellar storage. A few rows of baking beans planted next month promises to yield an important crop for next winter and no ration points are required for the garden products.

Food Administrators warn that millions of extra cans of food must be grown if this country is to meet the wartime and lend-lease demands. Seventy-five quarts of fruit and vegetables should be provided for each person for the coming year.

If you are or are not interested in extra garden space please notify Mr. Bisbee or Mrs. Tibbets.

When Your Back Hurts—

And Your Strength and

Energy Is Below Par

It may be caused by disorder of kidney function that permits poisonous waste to accumulate. For truly many people feel tired, weak and miserable when the kidneys fail to remove excess acids and other waste matter from the blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, rheumatic pains, headaches, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling. Sometimes frequent and scanty urination with burning and stinging is another sign that something is wrong with the kidneys or bladder.

There should be no doubt that the best treatment is wiser than neglect. Lee's Kidney Pills. It is better to rely on a medicine that has won court-awarded approval than on something less favorably proven. Lee's have been tried and tested many years. Are at all drug stores. See Doan's today.

DOAN'S PILLS

RESTRICTION ON SEED

POTATOES

Seed potatoes cannot be sold by retail stores for any purpose other than planting. OPA has announced. OPA has also ruled that seed potatoes must be tagged as such in sales at retail and cannot be sold by retailers in quantities of less than 50 pounds. Similar steps were taken by OPA Mar. 13, 1943, at the country shipper and other distributor levels. The amendment became effective March 25 and is expected to help curb the potato black market.

KEEP HEATING RATION STUB

Oil-rationed householders have been cautioned by OPA to preserve the identity stub of their heating ration as it will be required when next winter's rations are issued. The stub is the remaining part of the coupon sheet after all the individual coupons have been removed. It contains the code number of the individual's ration, the date of issuance and expiration of the amount of the ration, and similar information. Local boards will require the stub when the 1943-44 rations are distributed.

WOMEN LOOKOUTS FOR NATIONAL FOREST

Women lookouts will "man" White Mountain National Forest lookout towers during the approaching fire season, Supervisor Graham announced today.

Women lookouts, while no novelty in Western National Forests, have never before been called upon to occupy the windy mountain peaks of the White Mountains. This present move, Supervisor Graham explained, is in line with a general policy of using women wherever possible so as to avoid tying up manpower which might be used to better advantage elsewhere.

These women perform all the such as packing in supplies to their stations, cutting wood, and duties ordinarily expected of men, general maintenance work around their station. Their primary duty, however is, to watch for and report forest fires to their district ranger, as well as reporting airplanes to the First Interceptor Command.

Wood and wood products hold an important place in our war industry and forest fires result not only in loss of this vital raw material but in disruption of industrial schedules by the necessity of withdrawing men for fire fighting. Lookout women may well feel proud of their contribution to the war effort, Supervisor Graham stated.

Applications for this position are now being accepted by the U. S. Civil Service Commission at Manchester, New Hampshire.

Bean gave the treasurer's report. Both were approved. It was voted to paint the ceiling of the church. The redecoration of the church is going on at a rapid rate. If others wish to help on the other sides or take a section or furnish a strip, all help is greatly appreciated.

It was hoped to open the auditorium of the Methodist Church on Palm Sunday, but the final finishing touches necessitate a delay of another Sunday, when there will be on Easter Sunday a reopening with a Sunrise Service in the morning and a baptismal and reception of members at the 11 o'clock service. The service next Sunday will be in the church vestry.

Word has been received from Mrs. Rudy Dietrich of Andover, Mass., that one of her infant twin daughters is critically ill.

Miss Joyce Swan of Portland spent the week end at her home here before leaving Wednesday for Hartford, Conn., where she has employment.

Charles Bean is very ill at the home of his son, Robert Bean, at Sunday River. His daughter, Mrs. Homer Smith of Bethel, was there Tuesday night.

GRASS FIRES THREATEN BETHEL MILL PROPERTY

A silent alarm called the fire department Monday noon to P. J. Tyler's box shop, where a grass fire, evidently started by a passing locomotive burned to the building before it was extinguished. At the same time the crew of the Hanover Dowel Co., successfully fought a grass fire which approached the mill buildings.

G. T. STATION TO HAVE MAJOR IMPROVEMENTS

Office space at the Grand Trunk station will be more than doubled when the work of improvement which started Tuesday is completed. The office will be moved to the position of the ladies' waiting room, and the old office and men's waiting room will become an enlarged room for both men and women. A ticket window and counter will take care of the freight, express, ticket and telegraph business.

The enlarged business quarters, which have been much needed for several years, will be well lighted with windows on three sides of the room and will be much more convenient both for the company personnel and their patrons.

STORMS ADD VARIETY TO APRIL WEATHER

A fall of some five inches of damp snow gave a decided wintry touch to the scenery Tuesday morning. Most of this snow disappeared during the day but it was followed by even more of the same variety on Wednesday morning, accompanied by some thunder and lightning. Cool winds kept this snow with us although some of the more optimistic still entertain hopes for higher temperatures.

GARDEN PLANS NOW IN PROGRESS HERE

Food won the first World War and it will play a big part in winning this one and a bigger part in the peace that follows.

The Civilian Defense Corps of the State of Maine requests that every town chairman be able to report on the number of gardens planted and the number of quarts of foods canned. All towns and cities are urged to plan and provide community gardens for extra food.

The Selectmen of Bethel are ready to help if there is an interest in more garden space being made available and have asked Mrs. R. R. Tibbets to act with them as garden chairman.

Please return the questionnaire to your neighborhood representative at once for the planting season will soon be here. This State project is designed to increase the production of essential vegetables for canning and cellar storage. A few rows of baking beans planted next month promises to yield an important crop for next winter and no ration points are required for the garden products.

Food Administrators warn that millions of extra cans of food must be grown if this country is to meet the wartime and lend-lease demands. Seventy-five quarts of fruit and vegetables should be provided for each person for the coming year.

If you are or are not interested in extra garden space please notify Mr. Bisbee or Mrs. Tibbets.

NORTH AFRICA:

Axis Hold Shrinks

Of key importance in heralding the possibility of an earlier-than-expected finish of the Tunisian campaign were reports that the harbor and shipping facilities of Gabes had been left undamaged by the Axis forces in their hasty retreat from Gen. Montgomery's onslaughts.

With Gabes functioning as an Allied supply port, the long overland haul of war materials from Tripoli or Benghazi far down the African coast in Libya could be avoided. Moreover, Allied sea and air power concentrated in Gabes could further harass the Axis forces.

The all-over battle for North Africa was not yet won, but steadily British armies from the north and south and American armies from the center were tightening the squeeze on the remaining Axis troops in Tunisia.

As Marshal Rommel's forces had made their last desperate effort to beat their way northward for a junction with Col. Gen. Von Arnim's troops in the Bizerte area, reports indicated that the Axis had flown fresh troops into Tunisia. To relieve the pressure on Rommel, Von Arnim's forces had staged a brief counter-offensive against British forces near Bizerte. Control of the air over North Africa had appeared to be turning overwhelmingly in the Allies' favor, as raids shook the Axis lines and turned Rommel's retreat into a nightmare.

Meanwhile in answer to reports that Germany had commandeered the Italian fleet and all available French merchantmen preparatory to an attempt to evacuate Italo-German armies from Tunisia in an Axis "Dunkirk," the Allies staged an unprecedented raid by 100 Flying Fortresses that smashed the important Axis supply base at Cagliari, Sardinia, damaging 28 merchant ships and putting 71 enemy planes out of commission. Simultaneously, waves of American Billy Mitchell bombers struck at an Axis convoy in the Sicilian narrows, sinking at least three large ships and leaving others burning and settling.

INVESTIGATION:

Of U. S. Held Foods

Into a maze of charges and countercharges that the government itself had become No. 1 food hoarder, the senate's Truman investigating committee plunged in an effort to obtain the facts.

Chairman Harry S. Truman announced that a two-way investigation was in progress. One phase is to inquire into the amount of food held by government agencies. The other was to investigate the needs of the armed forces. Information from both government and private sources had been obtained, he said.

Previously, members of the food trade and others had charged that the armed services are hoarding processed foods and thus forcing less than necessary civilian allowances under rationing.

"Supplies of food for the armed forces must be sufficiently great to assure that there will be plenty of food for our soldiers and sailors," Truman said. "However, care must be taken to assure that the government does not itself become a hoarder."

The department of agriculture likewise disclosed that an additional 12 million cans of canned fruits, vegetables and juices were being transferred from the army. These supplies, officials disclosed, would be released later on to meet emergencies. Some of these stocks are to be released to civilian channels and some may be required by other government agencies.

The toll of German prisoners has increased steadily as British and American forces have driven in on Rommel's cornered Axis forces in Tunisia. Typical of the multitude of captives is the above group of German prisoners taken in the British drive north of Gabes.

FOOD SUBSIDY:

Urged to Aid Poor

Suggesting that the government pay persons in low income groups special allowances to enable them to buy sufficient food, Roy F. Hendrickson, head of the Food Distribution administration, declared he believed that otherwise these people would "find it tough to get food."

Emphasizing that his statements were his own personal views, Hendrickson declared that the plan he advocates would aid the farmer. Declaring the problem had to be "treated from both ends," he said that the farmer had become discouraged because food costs have gone so high while prices paid him have not risen in proportion.

"We have got to see that the farmer is able to market his stuff," Hendrickson declared. Any volume of income to the purchasing class is bound to help the farmer.

In addition to the low income groups, he suggested payments for the aged, the blind and otherwise handicapped.

POSTWAR PLANS:

Poland Speaks Up

With postwar peace plans gaining increased attention in Allied circles, the Polish government-in-exile served notice that Poles would resist "to the last man" any claims from any quarter aimed at the "sovereignty and integrity of Poland."

Spokesman for the Poles was Prime Minister Wladyslaw Sikorski, now a resident of London. Target of the statesman's remarks was Russia, since the Soviet government recently announced its intention of retaining the Polish Ukraine and the area bordering on White Russia which was taken from Poland under the German-Russian partition of Poland in 1939.

But even as he stoutly proclaimed his doctrine of independence, Sikorski recommended that an Allied air force should go to the Russian front after the fighting in Tunisia is concluded as an expression of United Nations' solidarity. He predicted a third German offensive by the German armies against Russia.

CIVILIAN GOODS:

No Further Cuts?

Taking stock of America's industrial power, Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the War Production board, declared that "Today we are turning out more goods for war than we ever produced for our peacetime needs, yet we have enough power left over to keep civilian standards of living at a high level."

Mr. Nelson predicted in an address in Chicago that the United States this year will turn out more than 80 billion dollars worth of goods for war purposes. The WPB chief's 1943 estimate compares with 48 billion in 1942, the first year after Pearl Harbor, 17 billion in 1941 and four billion in 1940, the year Germany smashed her way across Europe.

The figures will get even bigger, Mr. Nelson said, adding "as they grow the armies and cities of the Axis will feel an ever-fiercer flame, a more terrifying blast from the guns and bombs of America." Eventual victory, he declared, already is being foreshadowed in the "cold hard figures of production."

INVASION:

Africa Mop-up First

Looking upon the war, Elmer Davis, director of the OWI, found it going pretty well, except for one sector—the Atlantic.

Sinkings of Allied cargo vessels by Axis submarines have been worse than in recent months, he declared, but not nearly so heavy as ship losses a year ago. Peering across the Atlantic, Davis predicted that Marshal Rommel's Afrika Korps would be defeated in North Africa in time to permit an Allied invasion of Europe this year.

Concerning Rommel, he said: "He may be able to make a last-ditch stand at Bizerte, but he has less chance of getting much of his stuff out of Tunisia than the British had at Dunkirk."

SPENDING:

Lags Behind Budget

Although war expenditures now exceed six billion dollars a month, the government is lagging behind war budget spending schedules, an analysis of treasury figures disclosed.

In surveying the picture, financial experts recalled that President Roosevelt in his budget message of last January estimated that in the 1943 fiscal year ending June 30, war expenditures would be 74 billion dollars, that treasury revenue would be 22 billion, 970 million dollars, leaving a net deficit of 57 billion, 461 million.

Expenditures in the first nine months of the fiscal year totaled slightly more than 50 billion dollars. Although monthly outlays were soon expected to reach eight billion dollars, spending, revenue and deficit would fall substantially below the President's estimate. A bare chance remained that a final spurt in the next three months could achieve the wartime goals.

DRAFT:

Reaches War Plants

As the need for military manpower increased a nation-wide search of war factories for men of draft age who could be replaced by women or older men was undertaken. So great is the need, Selective Service officials revealed, that the canvass of the war plants might result in calling for military service thousands of men now classified 2A and 2B—men actually producing tools of war or working in direct support of the war effort.

State directors of Selective Service, conferring in Washington with Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, draft director, surveyed the over-all operations covering inductions for the future.

Not only would practices governing the drafting of fathers be clearly defined, but under consideration were measures in connection with a compulsory labor draft, investigating of labor hoarding by war industries and the return to agricultural work of farm workers who have entered industry.

'AIR POLICE':

To Insure Peace

Air power as a police force preserving world peace after the war was envisioned by former President Herbert Hoover, who proposed that the United Nations strip the Axis powers of their airplane factories as a means of stopping ambitious militarists.

The former President declared that "planes alone" could do the job of maintaining international order, thus allowing extensive land and sea armament while the world moves peacefully into an era of "freedom-of-the-air."

Emphasizing the essential importance of aviation in the post-war world, Mr. Hoover said: "It is probable that enemy countries would, as part of disarmament, at least be deprived of the right to manufacture airplanes until the world was satisfied that their faces are firmly directed toward peace."

HIGHLIGHTS . . . in the week's news

OTTAWA: Meat rationing for Canada, effective early in May on the basis of two pounds a person a week, was announced by Finance Minister James Hsley. Meatless days will be observed in restaurants, hotels and other public eating places after plans being prepared by the dominion price board are completed. The ration represents a reduction of about one-half pound a week.

BERNE: As threats of an Allied invasion increased, the Italian government published the text of a new law which would place the entire country under military rule and send all men and women of 17 years or older into military detachments in the event of invasion. Completing a tour of Sicily, Aldo Vidussoni, secretary of the Fascist party, declared that every town and city is a "fort." Rome radio reports indicated the Italians expect an attack as soon as the fight for Tunisia is over. Reports persisted that the Italian fleet was now in German hands.

TIRES:

Synthetics O. K.

Two events pointed to the conclusion that the nation's synthetic rubber producing program was proceeding successfully.

One was the appearance of Rubber Director William M. Jeffers before a senate committee with a heavy duty synthetic truck tire and his statement that the artificial elastic had been perfected "to the point where it will very nearly meet all requirements without mixing with natural rubber."

The other was the action of the rubber division and the department of agriculture in reducing the immediate planting of guayule, a rubber producing shrub from 53,000 acres to between 13,000 and 20,000 acres.

Jeffers warned, however, that the rubber situation was still critical.

RUSSIA:

Mud Unlimited

Yards rather than miles were the measure of Russian gains on the Smolensk sector as the thaw-soddened central front was further mired by heavy spring rains.

Further to the south, however, the Red forces menaced the steadily shrinking German bridgehead in the Northwest Caucasus by the capture of Anastasevskaya, 38 miles northwest of Novorossisk on the last highway link between Nazi forces north and south of the Kuban river.

Elsewhere, fresh German tank assaults against the Soviet line on the Donets river east of Kharkov were rolled back by the stout Red defenders. In the north the Germans tacitly reported a retreat near Staraya Russa, between Moscow and Leningrad, by admitting a "withdrawal to prepared positions."

SOUTH PACIFIC:

Bombs Break Lull

American bombs exploding on Kiska in the Aleutian Islands, Vila in the central Solomons, Kahili in the Shortlands and in Japanese holdings north of Australia broke the lull in the Pacific war theater.

While the foregoing raids had nuisance and punitive value, General MacArthur's fliers in New Guinea centered their attacks on enemy supply and communication lines between Wewak and Madang and straddled the entire Salamaua area.

A communiqué from Allied headquarters said that low-altitude raids in the Salamaua area with bombs, cannon and machine gun fire had subjected this front to the most intensive damage this Jap base had yet received.

Allied airmen continued their raids on the airdromes at Lae and at Timika in Dutch New Guinea.

THE STORY SO FAR: Arriving simultaneously at the King Cole Ranch, Anna Lee and Cole Cody discovered Old Early Bill Cole had made two identical wills, one leaving all his money and the ranch to Anna; and the other, giving the same money and property to Cole. Rance Waldron, established at the Ranch since Old Bill's death, and posing as his nephew, questioned the sanity of Old Bill and the legality of the two wills. It was nearly noon when they returned to Ranch headquarters. That evening they all retired early, that is all except Aunt Jenifer, who stole out under a large oak tree and watched Rance Waldron help a strange lurching man out of the house.

Now continue with the story.

CHAPTER XII

Aunt Jenifer went straight to Cole Cody's outside door, and hammered at it hard with her knuckles. He was asleep but came awake instantly, and called out,

"Who's there? What's wanted?"

"It's me, Jenifer Edwards. Dress quick and come out here. Bring your gun, too."

"Well?" he demanded when he stepped out close to Aunt Jenifer's shadowy form.

"I don't know," she said calmly if eagerly. "I don't trust that Rance Waldron; he's got a mean eye. All day long he has kept his door locked, and all day I've known that he had somebody he's been hiding. I've been watching, figuring with all this secrecy he'd be anxious to get his friend out of the house when he was sure everybody was in bed. Just now he and another man sneaked out and went to their horses that were saddled and hidden in a willow thicket."

"What about it?" demanded Cody, about as amiable as most men rudely awakened from a deep sleep all for the sake of a mere trifle. "What affair is it of mine? Or of yours, either?"

"Part of it is this: Rance Waldron has had this man hid in the house behind a locked door all day; that's a mystery, young man, and I don't like mysteries. Then it's shady, their sneaking out of the house this time of night, speaking in whispers. And someone shot, Early Bill a few days ago; and in case there was no will, Rance Waldron would have inherited ranch, cash, and everything. Another thing: the stage was held up yesterday by someone who knew that Bucktooth Jenkins was bringing ten thousand dollars in cash to Early Bill Cole. And you fired a few shots at the robbers and thought you hit one of them. And the man with Waldron limped so bad that he could hardly walk. Is that an awful, or just child's chatter?"

"Which way did they ride?" asked Cody, grown brisk now.

"Straight north, along the creek on this side."

"You'd better get to bed, Aunt Jenifer. It's dawning on me that you're a pretty wonderful woman, but you can't keep going day and night."

"You bet I'll go to my room, Bill Cole Cody, and lock my door. Darn it, I'm scared. And you come back as soon as you can; I'll hear you, and I'll creep out into the living room to make sure it is you. Now poke along."

He hurried down to the ranch buildings for a word with Cal Roundtree, and a horse.

Cal, awakened and apprised of the situation, was out of the door still buttoning his overalls and drawing his belt about his lean middle. Cole Cody was ahead of him at the stable; they saddled swiftly and took the trail Aunt Jenifer had specified, north along the creek.

"If they want to hide they can make themselves hard to find in this country," said Cal Roundtree. "I know the most likely place to look for them, since they must have thought that no one had seen their getaway, and so no one would be following them so soon. Likely they'll get under a roof tonight, anyhow, and maybe poke on tomorrow night."

As they rode, Cole Cody told Cal in detail Aunt Jenifer's information, her suspicions and surmises.

Cal led the way, and the darkness did not matter to him; moreover, his horse soon discovered where he was going and thereafter needed no touch on the reins. They kept close to the creek for a mile, and though they rode swiftly they heard no sound of hoofbeats ahead. Then Cal swung to the right where a small tributary brook came tumbling down, and presently they passed into the mouth of a steep-walled ravine. It was about a half hour after entering the ravine that Cal Roundtree called softly over his shoulder.

"We've run 'em down, pardner. There's a log cabin up there at the head of the canyon where an old prospector used to hang out; nobody's been in it for three or four years, but there's a light there now."

"It strikes me," said Cody, "that we've got 'em where we want them, where they can't run out on us."

"It strikes me, Cody," said Cal Roundtree, taking his time to think things out to some sort of logical conclusion, "that it would be fair play and on the up and up if we played a dirty trick on them. We leave our horses before we get too close, and creep up on 'em Injun style. And we try our darndest to hear what they are talking about. There's a lot of fellers I know that just can't help being blab-mouthed. If these two are like that, we might learn something we're hankering to know."

They rode slowly, keeping their horses in the deep grass at the sides of the trail so that all hoofbeats were muffled. Thus they drew within a hundred yards of the log cabin. There Cal Roundtree gave a signal to stop, and both dismounted. They led their horses a score of paces into the thick timber fringing the creek, and removed their spurs to hang them on their saddle horns. Then walking in silence, lifting their booted feet as does a cat in wet grass, they drew near the cabin.

A voice, not Rance Waldron's, was speaking, and it was rough and querulous and came near being threatening.

"... and so, there you let me rot all day, damn you. I might of died! I might die yet for all the doctoring I'm getting. By God, Rance, I've got a notion and a good notion—"

"You'd better keep your mouth shut, Tom, old man, before you talk yourself into more trouble than you can ever crawl out of."

There spoke Rance Waldron, and his voice was arrogant, contemptuous, revealing a man very sure of himself.

"Get it into your head, Rance, that things have changed plenty! You had me down good and plenty, didn't you? You could have wagged your finger and sent me to the pen, couldn't you?" He laughed chucklingly. "Not any more, kid! I've thought it over from all angles, Rance. You won't do any squealing on me because at the end you've let your foot slip; you'd be squealing on yourself the same as on me. What I've did you paid me for. The other job, with me getting shot up, you and the did together. And I can prove it!"

There was a breathless stillness there in the cabin. Then Rance Waldron spoke again, and there was a marked change in his tone. All the challenge and threat, all the masterfulness and contempt had gone out of it.

"You are right, Tom. We have gone into this thing together and we had better see it through together. And I'll even grant you that I no longer have any hold on you; if you are big enough fool for it, you can leave me flat and go your own way for the rest of your life knowing that you don't have to be afraid of me any longer, because as you say I am as deep in this last affair as you are. It's your turn to speak up: Stick along with me and take orders from me and make yourself a big stake if I get away with this job, as I'm sure I will, with "That man in there, that Tom Gough," said Cal, "is the man that shot old Early Bill. He was made to do it by Rance Waldron. That's something I'm pretty certain of. And the two of them are the stage robbers; that's something else I'd bet my boots on."

"You sound like you knew what you're talking about," said Cody. "I gather the same idea as you do about the hold-up. But how come you cinch the shooting of Early Bill on Tom Gough?"

"You don't see a man wearing a new hat every day, Cody. Early Bill, before he checked in his chips, told Doc Joe and the Judge how he had whanged away at the hombre that potted him; how he had shot the feller's hat off. He said, 'Watch out for a man with a hat with a hole in it, or a man without any were the same. And right then the inspiration and the temptation, assailed her to try her key on still another door. If it worked on these locks, why not on Rance Waldron's?

She scurried to that door through which Waldron had passed so many times, always locking it behind him.

And the key fitted the lock, and the door opened! She was thrilled with a sense of adventure and was also just a mite frightened.

She entered a bedroom that was in considerable disorder. She glanced at the bed itself with its covers dragging on the floor; then around the room until her eyes came to a full stop at a table on which there were some papers and a couple of penciled account books. She flipped over pages: Cattle bought and sold; numbers in the various herds, cost and sales prices; that sort of thing for the most part. Among the scattered papers was a new letter signed by Andy Jenkins.

It said:

"Dear Bill, I done my job all right, better than you speculated what I mean is I got the whole ten thousand and am bringing it with me only I am staying a day with my relations and will ketch the stage next day.

Yours truly,

Andy Jenkins."

"So that's it," Aunt Jenifer mumbled to herself. "That Waldron devil found this letter and got busy, him and the man he's been hiding in here all day. No wonder he wanted to get rid of us."

She crumpled the tell-tale letter in her hand and hurried into the other room and tried the door leading to the outside; again the key fitted. She closed the door again and began taking stock of this second room's contents. There was a splotch on the floor; a rug had evidently been drawn to cover it, then its edge turned over by a careless foot as the two men departed. And that spot looked to Aunt Jenifer like a blood smear. So she leaped to the same conclusion that had offered itself to Cody and Roundtree.

On the next step she was already decided. She would unlock the outside door again, leave it unlocked, but closed, make her retreat through Waldron's room, slip out of his door that led into the corridor, lock that door and carry her key off with her. Then when he came home and found his outer door unlocked he would have something to think about; when he missed the Jenkins letter which he had been too great a fool to destroy or hide, he'd have still more matter for thought.

But there wouldn't be the vaguest hint to make him think that this had been an inside job. And even though for one reason or another he did get the idea that Aunt Jenifer had had something to do with it, he couldn't really be convinced—and he'd be mighty careful about speaking of it to her, for fear of tipping his hand. And watch her play innocent tomorrow!

Now she wanted to hurry faster than ever, for she kept telling herself that she was in a den of murderers. Yet she kept telling herself also that now was her one and only chance to make a thorough search in these two rooms.

Well, she had done all she could now, and had better scamper for her own quarters.

So she did as she had planned, unlocked the outer door, removed the key and turned to retrace her steps through Rance Waldron's door.

And then she stiffened and almost dropped her lamp. Distinctly she heard rapidly coming footsteps outside.

He saw Rance Waldron clearly in the candle light.

you or without you. Or tuck your tail between your legs and run out on me."

That sort of talk, straight from the shoulder, evidently threw Tom Gough off his balance.

"I'm with you, Rance," he said, and all the belligerent menace had melted out of his tone. "Now what?"

"You hole up here for a few days and give that wound a chance to heal. Meantime I'll plan; I'll learn a few things I'm not sure of yet; I'll drop in on you late tomorrow night."

"That's fair enough," said Tom Gough.

Cal Roundtree had shoved Cody out of his way and was peering in through the open slit between the two logs. He saw Rance Waldron clearly in the candlelight, saw him go to the door and pass through and close the door behind him. And clearly he saw Tom Gough, a man of low, squat stature with a thick thatch of black hair and a week's thatch of bristly growth of whiskers; with a brutish, flat face and a pair of brilliant, close-set black eyes. And he took particular stock of Tom Gough's hat. It was brand new. Old clothes, ragged boots—and a brand new hat.

Rance Waldron went on his way to his horse tethered near by, then down trail returning along the way he had come.

hat at all, or a man with a brand new hat. Now climb on your pony and let's travel."

And at the ranch house, while Cal Roundtree and Cole Cody were giving their attention to Waldron and Tom Gough, Aunt Jenifer was busy-ing herself in her own fashion. She scurried post-haste to her own room, closed the door and was going to lock it when she discovered there was no key in the lock. She hurried to Ann's room adjoining. The door was closed but unlocked; no key there either.

But she thought, that Waldron man's door is locked. He's got a key. There ought to be others somewhere. So, carrying her lamp, she went prowling through the house, key-hunting. She looked at all locks on tables and dressers, she ran her fingers along cupboard shelves. She came to a closed closet and opened it to peer inside, and, of all places, found a key in the lock within the closet.

She tried it in her own lock; it fitted and she shot the bolt home. She locked herself in and went to Ann's door, the farther one opening upon the corridor. It fitted there, too. Another hmf! It seemed as though all the locks in the house

EVOLUTION

By Phillips C. Brooks

In nineteen hundred forty The ads of Henry Ford Showed all the latest models Without the running board.

In nineteen hundred forty-one The shiftless car was born And there was quite a bit of talk Of yanking out the horn.

In nineteen hundred forty-two Out came the streamlined bus With half the chassis chiseled off By some ingenious cuss.

But now is nineteen forty-three Old Dobbin has the call And, brother, you ain't lyin' cause There ain't no car at all.

THE LOW DOWN FROM HICKORY GROVE

Some of the contests I been sponsoring have been running so long you might think they would fold up. This one about "what this country needs less of versus more of" keeps going. Answers keep coming in, but nobody has said lately that we need less meat— not even a dilettante trying to slenderize mama has said so.

But up toward the top in the contest answers keep drifting in on "indispensable men" and how we need fewer of same. One duck writes that no one ever approprated George Washington as being indispensable, but when Washington stepped down, along came Mr. Adams, and he was okay, too. And also the same gent says that one time when he was kinda young and cheasy, he quit his job himself, thinking he was indispensable, but the boss didn't close down the factory—he later enlarged it.

Yours, with the low down,
JO SERRA

 White with snow,
 Just as the fence posts begin to show.

Oh, spring's a time for new hope and cheer—

So let's remember some other year!

 leanor from Mechanic Falls were guests on Sunday of Mrs. Maurice Tyler. Other callers were E. S.
 Tyler and family of East Bethel.
 Mr. and Mrs. Walter Brown were in Norway one day last week.

 Lewiston Thursday where she will take the preliminary training ex-

 the C. M. G. Hospital. Miss Waterhouse will graduate with honors from Gould Academy in June.

 timber for Mrs. M. F. Tyler and Karl Stearns.

 robins sitting in an old maple probably debating whether to fly south or stay in the north and hope for warmer weather.

A Suggestion for Satisfaction and Savings in Your Reading Matter

In these days of rationing, restrictions and shortages, more and more magazine read-

 the great convenience of assured service over a long period.

For the average home we recommend these magazines as whole family. For other magazines it will be advantageous

EXTRA BOND FOR APRIL

All War Bonds bought in April will be credited to the Second Victory Loan Drive. Be sure to tell at the post office or bank, wherever you make your purchase, whether or not your particular bond is one that you promised some organization to buy, and if so, name the organization. The whole aim of this drive is to "Outfit the Outfit."
 Start buying NOW for the boys who are saving YOU now. Buy Bonds as if your life depended upon it . . . it does!

THE 2nd WAR LOAN DRIVE IS ON!

How to invest in "fighting dollars!"

"Lend more money to help carry on the fight!" That's what our Government is asking you and all the rest of us . . .

 asking us to lend it 13 billion fighting dollars in the next few weeks! 13 billion extra dollars—over and above all regular War Bond buying!

We can do it . . . we must do it . . .
 we owe it to our boys who are fighting overseas. For their sake. . .

We've got to build more ships! We broke all records last year when we built 8 million tons of shipping. This year, we're building 18 million tons
 . . . but still it is not enough!

We've got to do more fighting! More and more of our soldiers and sailors are going into actual combat . . . requiring more equipment, and more supplies. We cannot let them down!

We've got to buy more War Bonds!
 To help pay for the things our fighting men need . . . we've got to buy War Bonds as we've never bought them before!

In the next few weeks you may be visited by one of the thousands of men and women who are giving their time and effort to the 2nd War Loan Drive. Welcome these patriotic workers if they call . . . buy from them all the War Bonds you can!

Better still, don't wait for them. Go to your nearest bank, post office, or War Bond booth, and invest more fighting dollars now! It's the least you can do to help those who are fighting and dying overseas!

Among the 7 different kinds of U. S.
 Government securities is one that exactly fits your own particular purse and requirements. These securities are the finest investment in the world . . . bar none! For your Country's sake . . . for your own sake . . . invest all you can!

THEY GIVE THEIR LIVES . . . YOU LEND YOUR MONEY!

Dried Foods Compressed

To Save Shipping Space
Wartime shrinking of food to save shipping space brings us, step by step, closer to the old idea of a capsule meal. The latest wrinkle is compressing already dehydrated foods. Additional space saved by compressing ranges from 30 per cent for dried whole milk to 80 per cent for dried cream of cabbage soup.

A dehydrated and compressed potato brick, no bigger than a shoe box, can be crumbled in hot water, and, when mixed, makes mashed potatoes for 100 soldiers.

Female Weakness

WHICH MAKES YOU CRANKY, NERVOUS!

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped thousands to relieve periodic pain, backache, headache with weak, nervous, cranky, blue feelings—due to functional monthly disturbances. This is due to its soothing effect on one of WOMAN'S MOST IMPORTANT ORGANS.

Taken regularly—Pinkham's Compound helps build up resistance against such annoying symptoms. Follow label directions. Worth trying!

Sentinels
of Health

Don't Neglect Them!

Nature designed the kidneys to do a marvelous job. Their task is to keep the flowing blood stream free of an excess of toxic impurities. The act of living—life itself—is constantly producing waste matter the kidneys must remove from the blood if good health is to endure.

When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide distress. One may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel tired, nervous, all worn out.

Frequent, scanty or burning passages are sometimes further evidence of kidney or bladder disturbance.

The recognized and proper treatment is a diuretic medicine to help the kidneys get rid of excess poisonous body waste. Use Doan's Pills. They have had more than forty years of public approval. Are endorsed by the country over. Insist on Doan's. Sold at all drug stores.

Folks Share Homes With Farm Animals in Andorra

Unharmful and unmolested by the conquering Napoleon and more recently by Hitler's armies is a small nation, Andorra, which lies between France and Spain on the slopes of the Pyrenees mountains. During the long winter months the people of Andorra (pop. 5,000) are "holed in" as the mountain passes become obstructed by snow.

Frequently farm animals are kept inside the homes to utilize the warmth of their bodies. Murder has never been committed in Andorra, according to records.

STAGE-SCREEN-RADIO

By VIRGINIA VALE

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

IT'S hard to write about Signe Hasso because only superlatives should be used, and there's so much to say. Very beautiful, talented and intelligent, the young Swedish dramatic star is famous on the Scandinavian stage and in England. She put in her year of waiting here for her quota number, so that she could act, by writing for Swedish newspapers, even covered the President's press conferences. She's a superb actress.

SIGNE HASSO

beautifully trained. You'll get just a small sample of her work in Metro's thrilling "Assignment in Brittany"; she stands out in a cast including such experts as Margaret Wycherly, Richard Whorf, John Emery and George Coulouris.

Christine Gordon, making her American debut in "I Walked With a Zombie," plays the zombie, the longest role in this RKO film. In Czechoslovakia Miss Gordon was well known on the stage, screen and radio—in this picture she doesn't speak a word!

Carlton Morse, whose "One Man's Family" has been a ten-year favorite on the air, is finally making a screen treatment of it for United Artists. What with still doing the famous radio serial and having his "I Love a Mystery" broadcast again, he's fairly busy.

"Ladies in Gray," a story of the American women who are working in government hospitals to help rehabilitate the wounded, will be produced by Metro with the co-operation of the war department and the Red Cross.

For the first time in eight years Adolphe Menjou and his wife, Verree Teasdale, will appear together in a picture; they'll be seen in "Hi Diddle Diddle" as a husband-wife team, and are planning to continue as a starring partnership.

Ann Shirley and Walter Reed, who took screen tests together when they were 13, for child parts in a Brian Foy picture, have the romantic leads in "Bombardier." He didn't immediately recognize her when they met at the RKO studio; in the days when they made those tests together she was known as "Dawn O'Day"—the kind of name heretofore given child actresses.

ODDS AND ENDS—Gloria Blondell, sister of Joan, is carving a career for herself, very successfully, in "I Love a Mystery" . . . Victor Borge's doing fine; after appearing in "Broadway Melody of 1933," he'll appear in a picture with Nelly Lamarr, as her leading man . . . Pierre Aumont, making his starring debut here as leading man in "Assignment in Brittany," looks like just what's needed in Hollywood, where good leading men are scarcer than hen's teeth . . . To date, Ralph Edwards' "Truth or Consequences" broadcasts from various cities have been sellouts; he hopes to sell $20,000,000 worth of war bonds on his tour.

New Tea Towels Add
Gayety to the Kitchen

ANIMATED cutlery, dishes, glassware, pots and pans bring their infectious gaiety to a new set of tea towels. They offer a mixing bowl parade, a knife, fork and spoon dash, the soup spoon dance, and four more equally interesting tea towel designs, with a trio of teaspoons as motif for a matching panholder. Outline embroidery does the set in a jiffy—it could even be done in running stitch.

No. Z9505, 15 cents, is a hot iron transfer of the eight motifs—the kind of transfer which may be stamped several times. Send your order to:

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

War workers cars are being checked in company parking lots by at least one manufacturer to make certain their tires are kept in serviceable condition. If the worker fails to have his tires rechecked in time he is denied further application either for tires or repairs.

It takes three to eleven times normal distance to stop on snow or ice without tire chains, and you can't negotiate slippery hills with bare tires that spin on packed snow, waste gas and wear tires.

Each tapper on a rubber plantation is responsible for about 300 trees, which in one day's tapping will not an average of 10 pounds of latex, equal to about 17 pounds of dry rubber.

Automotive conservation authorities in New Hampshire boast of the reduction of that state's tire needs by 87 per cent as an example of what can be done in saving rubber now on motor vehicles.

You'll Save Material by Measuring For Slip Covers This Easy Method

Your tape measure and a little figuring can help you save material when making those new slip covers. In estimating goods remember that the length and width of each section must be the same as the widest and longest measurement of the part of the chair to which it is to be fitted plus seams, seat tuck-in and flounce fullness. The method of measuring is shown here.

Slip cover material usually comes in 36 and 50-inch widths.
Frequently a narrow chair back may be covered by splitting a 50-inch width of goods. For other chairs 36-inch material might be cut to better advantage. If the material has a large figure an extra yard will be needed for matching and centering the design. Decide in advance which seams are to be accented with welting or trimming and measure them to determine the amount needed.

NOTE—Do the springs in your chairs need fixing? Mrs. Spear's new BOOK 9 gives illustrated directions for doing this.

thrill ideas for keeping your home attractive in wartime. Copies of BOOK 9 are

There was a sudden stop, to avoid a flustered-looking pedestrian who was dithering in the roadway.
Crimson with strain and rage, the driver leaned out of his cab. It was plain he was controlling himself with a great effort as he asked politely:
"May I ask what are your plans, sir?"

Could He?

Said Mr. Henpeck, who had just overheard his wife scolding the maid: "You and I seem to be in the same unfortunate position, Mary."
"Not likely!" replied the maid.
"I'm giving her a week's notice

Do you know the new regulations on packages sent to men in the service? Here they are: You can send packages to soldiers anywhere in the U. S., although there are now Post Office restrictions on packages to overseas Army men;
and you can send packages to men in the Navy, Coast Guard, and Marines, wherever they are. And when you send that package from home, remember—the gift men in the service always appreciate is cigarettes. And the favorite with men in the Army, Navy, Coast Guard, and Marines is Camel (based on actual sales records in Post Exchanges and Canteens).

In Riding a Bicycle, We Balance With Our Ears

The transportation restrictions have sent many thousands of people back to the bicycle. Some of us had not ridden a bicycle for years, but the art of balancing on two wheels came back to us easily enough.

Now, why don't we fall over?
The tires on the bicycle are a semi-circular pattern, you will have noticed, and when you come to think about it they do look pretty precarious. In fact, it is obvious that you are going to hold them up, not they hold you.

The truth is that we balance our bicycles with our ears. It is all part of our normal make-up, this balancing act, and we commence putting it into operation as soon as we begin to walk.

The ear is divided into three parts: the outer ear, the middle ear, and the inner ear. Our balancing mechanism is contained in the inner ear. There we have two tiny canals filled with liquid. We might almost call them "fluid levels," for they function in much the same way. When the liquid is moved by the sway of the head it touches tiny hairs which convey to the brain the message that we are overbalancing.

Notice how a tight-rope walker keeps his head perfectly still. Although he may not know it, he is listening carefully to the message from the delicate mechanism of his inner ear.

You know what happens when we spin round quickly. In a little while we lose all sense of balance, and the room appears to be spinning round us. Actually we have set the liquid in our ear canals spinning, and not until it has settled down and become still again shall we regain our normal faculties.

DAY AND NIGHT SERVICE

A WEEK OF THE WAR

The news of the week from Tunisia was the junction of the U. S. Second Army Corps and the British Eighth Army. Contact was made about 15 miles east of El Guefhar on the Gafsa-Gabes road, which indicates that the British swung inland some distance to meet the American force.

This junction was effected during the afternoon of April 7 (Wednesday), after a decisive defeat of Rommel's determined counterattacks. Early Wednesday morning when it became evident that the enemy could not maintain any position in the Wadi Akarit area north of Oudref, Allied mobile forces began moving forward. Wadi Akarit is a deep natural tank barrier which affords excellent defensive positions, but the Allied forces pushed their drive relentlessly, French, British and American troops moving in close cooperation. And by afternoon the British and American forces had made contact.

Effective Air Support

Aerial tactics are still a great factor in the battle of Tunisia. On Sunday, April 4, Allied air operations cost the Axis 11 aircraft destroyed, Monday's operations cost the Axis 48 planes, and Monday night an enemy bomber was brought down. Tuesday's total was 27 Axis planes destroyed; Wednesday's operations shot down 14. Thus in three days of aerial combat, the Allies put out of the fighting 101 Axis planes, at a loss of 23 of our own. Returning from an inspection tour Brig. Gen. Aubrey C. Strickland, commanding advanced U.S. Ninth Air Force units in the Tunisian front lines helped "break the back" of German resistance.

Secretary of War Stimson, in a review of the war, told reporters that in one day—24 hours—American planes operating in the African theater shot down 50 Axis planes and lost less than one-fourth of that number. Some of these Axis planes, he said, were big transport aircraft trying to supply the Nazis with gasoline. The week's bombing raids on Axis airfields in Tunisia, Sicily and Sardinia resulted in the destruction of 120 enemy planes caught on the ground, in addition to those shot down in combat.

Mr. Stimson confirmed an earlier claim that more than 5000 Axis soldiers were taken prisoner last Tuesday when the British opened their new drive north of Gabes, and promised that the British success and the American flanking actions would be "exploited to the fullest."

Jap Air Strength

The size of the Japanese air armada—50 bombers escorted by 48 Zeros—which was so decisively defeated April 7 in its attack against U. S. shipping in the Solomons seems to verify recent reports that the Japanese have been increasing their aerial strength in the southwest Pacific. U. S. airmen the Navy announced, shot down 37 out of the 98 attacking planes, and at a loss of only seven of our fighters. Secretary Stimson admitted that the Japanese have built up their air reserves in this area but said we have been doing the same thing. Although in some places we may not have a numerical superiority over the Japanese, the quality of our equipment and our men has constantly proved our superiority, and today we have an edge on them.

After reports from various officers and committees it was voted to resume bi-monthly meetings. Meetings have been held but once a month because of the tire and gas situation.

It was voted to serve a light lunch Wednesday evening to group of officers of the State Guard Reserve who were to have a conference at the Legion Home.

The Bond drive was discussed. The Unit hopes to sell enough to outfit at least one soldier before the first of May.

Mrs. Bennett reported attending the Jackson-Silver Birthday Supper. Mr. Bennett with Mr. and Mrs. John Compass also attended.

A letter was read from Vice-President Alice Gibson of Lewiston announcing her candidacy for State President this coming year. As usual the State President's monthly report in the Pine Tree News was read. It was agreed to send a donation to a fund to give aid to more student nurses, also the usual contribution to the fund for Cancer Control.

The Pan American program was taken up. Peru is the country most featured this year. Mrs. French presented a general article on Pan American Relationship. Mrs. Bertha Mills named the 21 Republics of the Western Hemisphere which make up Pan America. Of these 21 Republics, 12 are now at war with the Axis Powers, 3 have severed relations with them and 2 have given the U. S. and other American nations at war the status of non-belligerents, which grants to our ships the privilege of using their ports. Alta Meserve read "A Message from Peru." This was by a woman and tells much of the steady and rapid progress the Peruvian women are making today in comparison to just a few years ago.
